Student Showcase

The application for the 2023 Student Showcase is now live and is available here: <https://www.niagaracc.suny.edu/showcase/apply/>

We have a good slate of student-scholars who have expressed interest in the Showcase and will be working with their faculty mentors to complete the application. However, there is plenty of time for additional students to apply. If you have a student or team of students that have demonstrated initiative and drive in their studies, please suggest the Showcase to them and consider mentoring them through the process.

Participation in the Showcase provides many benefits to students, particularly with high levels of learning success, but there are cash prize incentives, too. Prizes will be awarded in the following categories:

- Business & STEM
- Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences
- Hospitality, Baking and Culinary Arts
- Nursing, Physical, and Allied Health
- Honors
- People's Choice
- First Year Student (new this year)

*Divisional prizes and first year award are dependent on the number of applicants. Please encourage students to participate!

Additional information about the Showcase is located here: <https://www.niagaracc.suny.edu/showcase/> or please contact any of the faculty librarians with questions: Andrew Yeager, Andy Aquino, and Jean Linn.

SPRING 2023 SCREENING SCHEDULE

NCC Cinephiles

We are paying homage to variety this semester with diversity on the screen and behind the camera. Paradoxically, when we honor what sets individuals apart, we can better appreciate what unites us as human beings. Each screening will be remarkably different from the others, so strive to see all three.

All films this semester are open to the public, courtesy of the Henrietta G. Lewis Library, the Office of Diversity & Equity, and the Len Sabato Memorial Film Series.

A Choice of Weapons: Inspired by Gordon Parks

(John Maggio, HBO Documentary Films, 2021)

Thursday, February 23, 5:00-8:00PM in E-142 | Presented by Scott Sackett

NCCC instructor, filmmaker, and public media producer Scott Sackett will lead a discussion of this riveting documentary film starring Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Ava DuVernay, Spike Lee, and others who recognize the legacy of photo journalist-turned-movie director Gordon Parks. Chances are, you have seen some of Parks's famous images from Life magazine without knowing the full story of this artist and social activist whose work broke barriers and portrayed common folk with dignity.

Cloud Atlas

(Tom Tykwer, Lana Wachowski, and Lilly Wachowski; Warner Bros.; 2012)

Thursday, March 30, 5:00-9:00PM in E-142 | Presented by S.V. Buffamanti

Presented by S.V. Buffamanti on Thursday, March 30, 5-9PM, in E-142

The modifier "epic" is used so often that its meaning has been diluted, but Cloud Atlas is an epic film whose expansiveness required three directors and that demands the largest screen available. Based on the novel by David Mitchell, Tykwer (Run Lola Run) and the Wachowskis (The Matrix) interweave six separate storylines from different genres (including SF, thriller, and comedy), spanning hundreds of years and multiple continents to pay tribute to the ways that human beings stand up for truth and dignity when opposed by forces both large and small.

Secret Path

(Gord Downie, Antica Productions, 2016)

Wednesday, April 19, 5:00-7:00PM, in E-142 | Presented by Ian Stapley

Between the 1880s and 1996, the Canadian government forcibly removed thousands of Indigenous children from their families. The children were sent to far away Residential Schools with the purpose of erasing their culture, heritage, and language. The abuse the Residential schools inflicted on these children is a national shame. Gord Downie's animated film Secret Path tells the story of one of these children, Chanie Wenjack, who fled the Cecilia Jeffrey Indian Residential School to return to his family, nearly four hundred miles away. He died en route. He was twelve years old.
